M.S. IN MANAGEMENT

One of the most critical questions facing modern organizations is how to bridge the communication gap between technically trained people and business decision makers. Through courses that cover both sides of this divide—from business analytics and finance to talent management and operations strategy—the M.S. in Management program at the Lally School will prepare you for a transformative career at this critical intersection. The program is directed for students who want to increase the depth of their understanding of one or more functional areas in business. The program features intensive study for students from a variety of educational backgrounds who would like to enrich their understanding of the fundamentals of business.
